It is hereby enacted as follows —

1 Short title—This Act may be called the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Act 1943

2 Amendment of section 303 Act V of 1898—In section 303 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 (V of 1898) (hereinafter referred to as the said Code) —

(b) for sub section (4) the following sub section shall be substituted namely —

“(4) Where the commission is issued to such officer as is mentioned in sub section (2) he may in lieu of proceeding in the manner laid down in sub section (3) —

(a) delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any officer subordinate to him whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class in British India or

(b) where the commission is for the examination of a witness residing in an Indian State forward it for execution to the State Court if any recognised by the Crown Representative by notification in the official Gazette as a Court to which commissions may be forwarded under this sub section within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the witness resides

4 Amendment of section 307 Act V of 1898—In sub section (1) of section 307 of the said Code after the words ‘duly executed’ the following shall be inserted namely — or in a case to which clause (b) of sub section (4) of section 303 applies has been duly received by the officer by whom it was forwarded to the State Court

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Section 303 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 provides that where the attendance of a necessary witness residing in an Indian State cannot be procured without unreasonable delay expense or inconvenience a commission may be issued for his examination to the officer representing the Crown Representative in that State. On receipt of the commission the officer is required to proceed to the place where the witness is or to summon him to appear before him for the purpose of taking down his evidence. He is also empowered to delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any officer subordinate to him whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class in British India.

2 As early as 1918 some States represented that this procedure was prejudicial to their interests and privileges and suggested that provision should be made to enable such commissions to be executed by the State Courts instead of by Political Officer. The Conference of Ruling Princes and Chiefs held in 1919 recommended the introduction of such a provision on a reciprocal basis. A Bill designed to give effect to that recommendation was introduced and passed in the Council of State in September 1921 but meeting with opposition in the Legislative Assembly it was allowed to lapse for the time being.

3 The existing legal position however continues to give rise from time to time to considerable inconvenience and it is felt that a remedy should be contrived. As the law stands Political Officers in Indian States have a statutory duty to perform but have no power to compel witnesses to appear before them. For this purpose they have to rely on the co-operation of the Durbars some of whom regard as an infringement of their prerogative right the exercise by Political Officers of a quasi-judicial function within their territory. The execution of a commission in a State far removed from the headquarters of the Political Officer

*The Governor General has been pleased to give the previous sanction required by section 109(1)(c) read with section 313(4)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935, to the introduction of this Bill in the Legislative Assembly charged with the task results in considerable inconvenience and expense either to the witness or to the Political Officer or to both. To avoid these difficulties in the execution of commissions Political Officer sometime forward them to a State Court for execution although that procedure is not authorised by the law.

4. Section 21 of the Indian Extradition Act 1903 enables a criminal Court in an Indian State to have commissions for the examination of witnesses executed by British Indian Courts. This Bill by the amendment it proposes in sub-section (4) of section 503 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 will authorise the Political Officer to forward a commission for the examination of a witness to a State Court within whose jurisdiction the witness resides if that State Court has been recognised by the Crown Representative as one competent for the purposes of section 503 to execute such commissions. At the same time by the amendment made in sub-section (2) of section 503 an ambiguity in the reference to tribal areas has been removed. The other amendments proposed by the Bill are of a consequential character.

L A BILL No 28 OF 1943

1 Bill to provide for the removal of social disabilities among certain classes of Hindus

Preamble—WHEREAS Hindu Shastras admit the existence of four Vernas only and not a fifth one

AND WHEREAS it is being increasingly felt now a days that the existence of a fifth Varna viz, the untouchable class has been causing great social harm to the solidarity of the Hindu Society

AND WHEREAS in certain matters even this class viz, the Harijans backward class depressed class are being legally recognised in the adjudication of rights and duties in Civil and Criminal proceedings in public schools of education which has been injuring the Hindu Society as a whole

AND WHEREAS untouchability of man in human society in the second part of the twentieth century is a slur on the society which permits its continuance and scandalous observance

AND WHEREAS such condition in Hindu society is repugnant to modern conditions and ideas of justice and humanity

AND WHEREAS it should no longer be recognised by law or otherwise enforced but should be totally discouraged

It is hereby enacted as follows —

1 Short Title and Extent—(1) This Act may be called the Removal of Hindu Social Disabilities Act 194

(2) It extends to the whole of British India

2 Removal of Social Disabilities among certain classes of Hindus—Notwithstanding any law, custom, usage or prescription to the contrary no subject or His Majesty resident in British India shall by reason of his belonging to any particular community or class amongst the Hindus generally known as achutes or untouchables depressed classes backward classes from olden times and recently called the Harijans (a name coined by Mahatma Gandhi and adopted by the Indian National Congress) be disabled or prevented from being admitted into any private or a Government-aided or Government educational institution (general or technical or professional) or from being appointed to any public office or from having full and unobstructed or unobjected access to the use of any drinking wells tanks streams pathways lanes or streets private or public or to any place of worship to which the Hindu public has access or to any such institution dedicated for public use maintained or paid out of public donations subscription or contribution or to any place of public meetings or public worship held under any trusteeship or endowment for public welfare

3 Non recognition of such disabilities by all courts—No Court whatsoever, Civil Revenue or Criminal or Public authority or local authority shall while adjudicating any matter or executing any order or carrying on the affairs entrusted to such authority recognise any such civic or social disabilities imposed by any law usage custom or prescription on any such person simply for belonging to such classes as generally known as untouchables depressed or backward classes and lately as Harijans

4 Disuse of certain expressions—On the coming into force of this Act the words 'backward class', 'depressed class', 'untouchables', 'Harijans' and 'scheduled class' shall cease to exist in any statute book and in common usage

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

To have any untouchable in human society in the second quarter of the 20th century is not only a standing scandal to the society which persists in its existence and continuity but is a disgrace to the society. To retain a large number of people human beings in society known as the backward class the depressed class the untouchable class or even by the name Harijan is condemnable. By one stroke of pen the existence of such a scandal ought to have been removed by Government long ago without caring for the opinion of those who insisted on its continuity. But it is better to be late than never. Mahatma Gandhi, to mitigate the bitterness of the suffering humanity tried to sugar it by calling the class as 'Harijans'. By this he has established a class which in course of time would have slowly and automatically merged in the 4th Varna in the Sudras. But now it has to be removed by law. The Reformers had created a public opinion against such a bad custom and the depressed classes have shown their righteous indignation against such treatment. The objection raised by certain blind orthodox people in Hindu society against any proposal to do away with such social and civic disabilities deserve no notice—as their objections do not stand to reason nor are conducive to the good of the society. It is high time that these disabilities should be done away with. If Hindu society insists on Vernas according to Shastras they cannot but merge these untouchables in the 4th Varna as they cannot have a fifth Varna recently called the scheduled class. Legislative measures should be taken up to do away with social and civic disabilities of a large number of Hindus who have suffered for ages. Humanity demands it justice compels it and it is high time that in Act to remove these disabilities should be passed without the least objection and delay.

Legislative Assembly Department

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th July 1943 —

L. A. BILL No. 30 of 1943

A Bill further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure 1908

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure (V of 1908) for the purpose hereinafter appearing

It is hereby enacted as follows —

1 Short title—This Act may be called the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act 1943

2 Insertion of a new sub section (3) in section 60 Act I of 1908—To section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure (V of 1908) add the following as sub section (3) —

(3) Nothing in clauses (g) (h) (i) (j) (k) (l) (n) and (o) of the proviso to sub section (1) of this section shall be deemed to exempt to more than one half of the amounts contemplated therein in the execution of an order under the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) for alimony or costs or the execution of a decree by the wife or children for maintenance or the execution of a decree for dower debt by the wife against her husband or to the execution of any other decree held by a wife against her husband resulting from the liability of the husband from conjugal relations

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure exempts certain properties of a judgment debtor from attachment and sale in the execution of a decree. It is based on the principle that the judgment debtor should be allowed to have certain essential articles of life and articles necessary for the earning of his livelihood and a minimum amount for his expenses and for the expenses of the family, and it is only after making a provision for these that he can be forced to pay to his creditors. This undoubtedly is a sound principle. It is however clear that the exemption so provided gives the judgment debtor an allowance for the maintenance of his wife and children. The exemption in salary and deposits is not solely for the benefit of the judgment debtor but for the benefit of his wife and children as well because for the purpose of the society and the state a provision for the maintenance of the family is no less essential than the maintenance of the judgment debtor himself. It follows therefore that if the judgment debtor fails to maintain his wife and children they are entitled to their share in the exemption. It is no doubt difficult to fix as to what would be their proper share. But looking to the individuals involved it can, in my opinion be equitably fixed at one half. If the judgment debtor refuses to maintain his wife and children and discharges his obligations arising out of marital relations he must be prepared to carry on with half of his income and compulsory deposit and pay the other half to his family. The proposition is almost self evident. Recently there has been a tendency on the part of the husbands to avoid their obligations which they owe to their family and take protection under exemptions which are really intended against outside creditors. To clarify my meaning I may cite a case recently decided by a full bench of the Nagpur High Court reported in 1942 N. I. J. (p. 450) Dr Nath versus Mrs Shakuntalabai. In this case the District Judge of Nagpur passed a decree for a judicial separation with an order directing Dr Nath the husband to pay alimony to Shakuntalabai, the wife, at Rs 15 per month pendante lite and Rs 25 as permanent alimony.

The wife applied for the execution of that decree and prayed for the attachment of her husband's salary which she stated was Rs 90. The husband contended that the attachment of the salary which was less than Rs 100 per mensem was barred by section 60 proviso (1). The contention was negatived by the District Judge on the ground that the order for alimony under section 60 of the Divorce Act which is a special law was independent of considerations of section 60 in respect of salary as it is the duty of the husband to support his wife and that to exempt the salary from attachment would be to nullify the order under section 37 of the Indian Divorce Act. The husband appealed to the High Court. The appeal was heard by Mr Justice Nagv who in view of the importance of the points involved referred it to a bench and the case was ultimately decided by a full bench of three Judges and it was held that the salary could not be attached. Their Lordships however in their judgment took the opportunity of expressing their view on the inequity of this provision of law. They observed

It is no doubt distressing to moral principle that a woman who has obtained an order for alimony should be unable to execute that order by attaching her husband's salary because her husband happens to be a Government servant and his salary does not exceed the minimum which is laid down for exemption in the Code of Civil Procedure. This minimum has been raised from time to time and considerably raised in recent years and when the Indian Divorce Act became law in the year 1869 any such exemption if indeed it existed at all was presumably at such a low figure as to render considerations of any possible conflict immaterial. If a person against whom an order for alimony is made has no property the execution would fail and in law it must fail similarly if he has property that is to say salary which by the provision of item (1) to the proviso to section 60 of the Code is protected. The only remedy is by legislation.

This is not a solitary case though few cases of the type go to the High Court. The conduct of the husband in such cases cannot be defended either on ground of equity justice or morality. It causes great hardship to the deserted wife and children and it is to remove this hardship that this Bill is introduced.

It is hereby enacted as follows —

1 Short title—This Act may be called the Indian Penal Code (Amendment) Act 1943

2 Amendment of section 34 Act XVI of 1860—In section 34 of the Indian Penal Code (XIV of 1860) (hereinafter referred to as the said Code) after the words in furtherance of the common intention of all insert the following words — or such as they know likely to be committed by them "

3 Amendment of section 299 Act VII of 1860—For section 299 of the said Code and Illustration (a) and (b) to that section the following shall be substituted namely—

(b) A assaults and strikes B with a lathi or other blunt weapon on a non-vital part of the body. Death results. A has not committed culpable homicide because death is not likely to result from such a blow. He has committed an offence of simple or grievous hurt.

4 Insertion of a new section 299A in Act VII of 1860—After section 299 of the said Code the following section shall be inserted namely—

299A Punishment for culpable homicide—Whoever commits culpable homicide shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years or with fine or with both.

5 Amendment of section 300 Act VII of 1860—(a) In section 300 of the said Code the words 'culpable homicide' is murder wherever they occur should be substituted by the words 'culpable homicide amounting to murder'.

(b) In the Exception to section 300 of the said Code the words 'Culpable homicide' is not murder wherever they occur should be substituted by the words 'culpable homicide does not amount to murder'.

6 Amendment of section 302 Act VII of 1860—In section 302 of the said Code for the word 'murder' the words 'culpable homicide amounting to murder' shall be substituted.

7 Amendment of section 302 Act VII of 1860—In section 302 of the said Code and wherever else the words 'transportation for life' occur in the said Code substitute them with the following words—imprisonment of either description which may extend to fourteen years.

8 Amendment of section 303 Act VII of 1860—In section 303 of the said Code for the word 'murder' the words 'culpable homicide amounting to murder' shall be substituted.

9 Amendment of section 304 Act VII of 1860—In section 304 of the said Code the paragraph beginning with the words 'or with imprisonment of either description' and ending with the words 'injury as is likely to cause death' shall be omitted.

10 Amendment of section 307 Act VII of 1860—In section 307 of the said Code for the word 'murder' the words 'culpable homicide amounting to murder' shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

In this Bill I am giving the Statement of Objects and Reasons under the various proposed clauses and before entering on that give here in brief a sketch of the same for a proper appreciation of the points involved.

The object of this Bill is threefold.

Firstly it seeks to amend section 34 I P C and to bring it in conformity with section 149 I P C just as the present section stands it applies only to offences of which 'intention' is a necessary ingredient. It cannot be applied to the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder as provided in section 304 second part which deals with acts resulting in death but committed without any intention to cause the same. In such cases a difficulty arises if the number of persons taking part in the offence is less than five and the liability of the act fixed on any particular individual as in such cases section 149 I P C cannot apply.

Secondly it is intended to amend the definition of culpable homicide and replace section 299 I P C with a new draft and make the necessary change in the subsequent sections for removing certain ambiguities which lead to confusion of thought regarding the framing of charges under sections 302 and 304 and which ultimately affect the defence of the accused in trials before the court of Sessions in cases of capital punishment.

Thirdly it seeks to give power to the courts and especially to the High Court in appeal to pass a proper sentence in cases under sections 302/149 in which transportation for life proves to be too harsh a sentence.

Clause 2—If out of a number of persons assembled together one person commits a criminal act the liability of such an act may be fastened on all of such persons under sections 34 and 149 of the Indian Penal Code. The conditions prescribed by these sections for the fastening of the liability are as follows.

Section 34 makes other persons liable if the criminal act is done in furtherance of the common intention of all.

Section 149 extends the liability to other persons if the offence is committed—

(1) in prosecution of the object of that assembly or

(2) such as the members know to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object.

Thus section 34 only deals with common intention while section 149 deals with common object in the first place and of the knowledge of the likelihood of the commission of the criminal act in the second place. The section 149 is wider than section 34. In cases in which an act is considered to be criminal even in the absence of a particular intention the liability of the act cannot be extended to other persons under section 34. For example section 34 second part provides a sentence of imprisonment extending to ten years in cases when the death is caused by an act.

If the act is done with the knowledge that it is likely to cause death but without any intention to cause death.

This gives rise to an anomaly. If one person out of five or more persons causes the death of a person without any intention to cause death all the persons would be liable with him under section 304 second part read with section 149 I P C if those persons knew that that act was likely to be committed in the prosecution of the common object. But if the number is less than five no liability would attach to other persons as section 149 would not be applicable to them their number being less than five and under section 34 no liability can be attached to them unless common intention is proved. Thus in such cases unless it can be specifically proved as to who caused the death no person can be convicted under section 304 second part. This loophole was clearly pointed out by the Honourable Mr Justice Plowden in Emperor versus Ram Nath and others 1943 A L J page 207. In this case four persons were found to have caused the death of one Munnu Teli. His Lordship observed: 'The accused have been found guilty of causing Munnu's death by doing an act with the knowledge that they were likely, by such act to cause his death. If therefore, five or more accused have been convicted they could have been found guilty under sections 304/149 because they knew that death was likely to result from the attack on Munnabhai but since there are now only four accused section 34 is involved and the definition is stricter. There must be furtherance of common intention. Under section 304 second part however there is not intention of causing death. Section 34 was substituted for the original section in 1873. The second part to section 304 is to be found in the original Act XIV of 1860, but it could not have been part of the original draft. In order to make section 34 applicable to the second part of section 304 it will be necessary to widen it in terms of section 149. Until that is done accused persons cannot be found guilty under section 304 second part read with section 34. His Lordship had therefore to convict the accused under section 323, I P C. The amendment proposed in this clause is intended to remove this defect.

Clauses 36 and clauses 8-10 —

Section 299 I P C was originally intended to define all offences which resulted in voluntary causing of death. No sentence was attached to it.

The words 'with the intention of causing death or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death' are reproduced and explained and amplified in section 300 as firstly secondly and thirdly. Fourthly was intended to be equivalent in murder cases to the words 'with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death' in section 299.

But there is a difference between fourthly in section 300 and the above words in section 299 whereas there is no difference between the words 'with the intention etc.' in section 299 already quoted and firstly secondly and thirdly in section 300.

There is no difference between murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder except for the protection afforded to the accused by the Exceptions to section 300.

A difficulty then arose: was there any offence of culpable homicide and if so what was its punishment? A punishment was attached to it under section 304 second part. This meant that section 299 ceased to be a definition of all offences resulting in voluntary causing of death and became the definition of culpable homicide only. Consequently the first part of section 299 'with the intention etc.' became not only redundant but confusing, and the Illustrations (a) and (b) have turned to be still more confusing because they are clear illustrations of murder and there is no illustration of culpable homicide as distinguished from murder due to this confusion. It is not properly understood by Sessions Courts that there are three offences of voluntary causing of death (1) Culpable Homicide (2) Culpable Homicide not amounting to murder and (3) murder. To clarify this position it is suggested that the definition of culpable homicide should be amended as follows —

Whoever causes death by voluntarily doing an act with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death commits the offence of culpable homicide. To this should be added section 299A.

Whoever commits culpable homicide shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to 10 years or with fine or with both, i.e. the 2nd part of section 304. The Illustrations (a) and (b) to section 299 be deleted as they are illustrations of murder and in its place other illustrations given as are mentioned in the Bill. Changes suggested in other sections are merely consequential. Apart from the importance of clarifying the definitions of these three offences, injustice and waste of time arise at present because an accused is entitled to be defended by counsel if he is charged with murder and it is not always easy to obtain experienced counsel when the Sessions Judge amends a charge from culpable homicide or culpable homicide not amounting to murder to a charge of murder and this is frequently done. It is to remove this confusion and consequent difficulties in the trial of cases that the Bill is introduced.

Clause 7 — By this amendment the sentence of transportation for life is ought to be substituted by imprisonment for 14 years. Under the present conditions transportation for life is out of question and in practice is being substituted by a term of imprisonment for a term of years. The change in conditions itself requires the fixation of the term of rigorous imprisonment that is to be awarded in lieu of the sentence of the transportation for life as transportation for life cannot be interpreted to mean imprisonment for life. The general conception about transportation for life is transportation for a period of twenty years but in practice it mostly amounts to fourteen years and so I have kept it at that figure. This is one of the reasons for the proposed amendment but the chief reason for the suggested change is that in some cases great hardship is involved to persons found guilty under section 302 due to the presence of the word 'transportation for life'. Many cases of riots occur in which two parties fight with each other resulting in six deaths to one member of one of the parties.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BENGAL, 1943

[NOTE — On an average of the five years ending 1941-42, the area under jute in the Province of Bengal and the Bengal States to which this forecast relates, represent some 79.7 and 1.5 per cent respectively to the total area under jute in India.]

Season — As noticed in the Preliminary Forecast the sowings in the white districts commenced under favourable weather conditions. Soon after the season became untoward in the shape of drought in some places and excessive rainfall elsewhere particularly in some North Bengal tracts. Monsoon showers brought in a general improvement all over the province. Some North Bengal tracts were however affected by irregular and excessive rainfall and a lack of sunshine. Exceptional fall in the water level in the Brahmaputra badly affected the quality of the crop watered by the Brahmaputra and its branches. The season has, however, been a favourable one for the Dacca tracts except in Burdwan and Midnapore districts.

Condition of the crop — The crop has been generally fair.

Area — The area under jute of 2 146 255 acres is the licensed area after elimination of the lands for which licence was issued but which were not actually sown as disclosed on an examination of the jute lands under section 14 of the Bengal Jute Regulation Act.

Outturn — As in the previous years the percentage figures are calculated on the basis of the divisional normals which remain as follows —

	Bales per acre
Dacca and Chittagong Divisions	17
Rajshahi Division	35
Presidency and Burdwan Divisions	32

The total outturn of the crop is estimated at 6 074,140 bales for the province.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BIHAR

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BIHAR, 1943

NOTE On an average of the five years ending 1941-42 the area under jute, to which the Bihar forecast relates, has represented some 9.1 per cent of the total area under jute in India.]

Area The final returns of the six jute growing districts in the province show that the area under jute is 202,300 acres as compared with 232,900 acres last year. The decrease in area is mainly due, as already stated in the Preliminary Forecast, to more land being put under food crops in Purnea.

Weather conditions No rain was recorded anywhere in March, except for some very light showers in Purnea and the Santhal Parganas, but the rainfall was general in all districts in April and was above normal. In May the rainfall was again above normal in Purnea but was below normal elsewhere and in June it was above normal in Purnea and Darbhanga but below normal in the other districts. In July the rainfall was below normal in all districts except in the Santhal Parganas where it was above normal.

Outturn In Purnea the outturn of the crop has been estimated at 60 per cent of the normal while in Champaran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Bhagalpur and the Santhal Parganas the outturn is reported to be 95.65, 75.70 and 57 per cent respectively of the normal.

Accordingly I estimate that the outturn this year will be 61 per cent of the normal as compared with 44 per cent last year. Taking the normal outturn to be 3½ bales per acre, the gross outturn from 202,300 acres will be 410,500 bales compared with 340,300 last year. Adding to this 14,500 bales representing the probable import from Nepal the forecast figure for Bihar comes to 425,000 bales.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, ASSAM

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF ASSAM, 1943

[NOTE—On the average of the five years ending 1941-42, the area under jute in Assam, to which this forecast relates, has represented some 8.8 per cent of the total area under jute in British India.]

Character of the season—As already stated in the Preliminary Forecast the weather was unfavourable at sowing time in the main jute growing districts. In June and July also the weather condition was not favourable due to heavy and continuous rainfall which checked the growth of the crop to a considerable extent specially in the districts of Goalpara, Darrang, Nowgong and Garo Hills. Local floods also caused some damage in certain districts in the low lying areas.

Area sown—The total area under the crop as estimated by the Deputy Commissioners comes to 194,000 acres against the revised figures of 320,200 acres last year and 174,600 acres shown in the Preliminary Forecast of this year. The area reported in the Preliminary Forecast has been revised in six districts.

Outturn—The outturn per acre has been estimated to be 50 per cent of the normal against 51 (revised) of last year. On the basis of the new normal yield of 3.3 bales of 400 lbs each per acre the total production of the Province is 319,900 bales against 541,300 bales (revised) of last year or a decrease of 41 per cent.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE BENGAL Preliminary Forecast of the Bhadoi Crops of Bengal, 1943-44

Calcutta the 30th September 1943

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1941-42 the area under autumn rice in Bengal has represented some 76 per cent of the total area under rice in India.)

Character of the season—The season at the outset was generally favourable for preparatory tillage and sowings except in some West Bengal districts where the weather was hot and dry. Monsoon showers brought in a general improvement all over the province. Some North Bengal tracts were, however, affected by irregular and excessive rainfall and a lack of sunshine. Some damage was also done to crops by flood in some West Bengal districts. On the whole a good harvest is expected for the province.

Area sown—The total area sown with the different bhadoi crops this year is reported to be 8,727,000 acres as against 6,990,000 and 7,311,200 acres respectively in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year. Of this the area under autumn rice is estimated at 7,935,100 acres as against 6,257,200 and 6,507,000 acres respectively in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

Outturn—According to the District Officers estimate the outturn of the different bhadoi crops for the presidency works out at 90 per cent of the normal this year as against 67 and 66 per cent respectively in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

The outturn of autumn rice as estimated by the District Officers works out to 91 per cent of the normal for the province this year as against 66 and 65 per cent, respectively in corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

First Forecast of the Winter Rice Crop of Bengal, 1943-44

(Note—On an average of the five years ending 1911-12 the area under winter rice in Bengal has represented some 20.8 per cent of the total area under winter rice in India.)

Character of the season. The weather condition and its effect on the rice plantation and growth of the crop have generally been favourable. In certain tracts in North Bengal however irregular distribution of rainfall hampered the rice plantation and retarded the growth to a certain extent of immature plant. Some damage was done to the crop in the Burdwan Division by the Dinodari flood. The outlook at present is promising.

Area.—According to the District Officers estimates the total area under winter rice worked out to 17 872 000 acres against 16 103 200 and 16 201 100 acres in the corresponding final forecasts respectively of the last year. The increase in area compared with the last year is due to the abnormal rise in the price of paddy and the Grow More Food Campaign.

Outturn.—From the district returns appended will be seen that five districts report a normal outturn five districts 92 per cent, eight districts between 80 and 90 and the remaining districts between 70 and 80 per cent of the normal. According to the above estimates the provincial outturn is anticipated to be 88 per cent against 78 and 75 per cent of the normal respectively in the first and final forecasts of 1942-43.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The great bulk of Government obligations in India have till very recently been expressed in the form of promissory notes which pass from hand to hand by endorsement and delivery. Stock certificates or certificates which are not negotiable themselves but merely record title the actual transfer requiring registration in the books of the Public Debt Office are of comparatively recent introduction. Not unnaturally therefore the law of Government securities in India started as an appendage to the Law of Negotiable Instruments modifying it where necessary to meet the peculiar circumstances of Government promissory notes such as (1) their validity for a period much longer than that of the ordinary negotiable instrument of commerce and the concomitant necessity of issuing separate instruments to replace the originals for the record of interest payments and (2) their being held more widely than ordinary negotiable commercial instruments by various classes of investors in addition to the financial and business community. The fact that Government loans were almost entirely in the form of promissory notes meant that the special modifications of the law effected from time to time to meet practical difficulties only related to Government obligations held in this form and the result that when the previous legislation was revised in the Act of 1920 a clear distinction was not always drawn between those parts of the law which ought to relate to Government securities as a whole and those which merely related to promissory notes. A striking instance of this is provided by section 17 providing for the summary provisional settlement of disputes which is confined only to promissory notes. Although logically imperfect this position did not in the past lead to any practical difficulties as the holders of Government loans in the form of stock certificates were comparatively few. As a result of war conditions however and the efforts of the Reserve Bank as agents of Government in the management of public debt to popularise stock certificates in the interest of safety and administrative convenience the proportion of Government loans held in the form of stock certificates or in special subsidiary ledger accounts which the Bank has undertaken to maintain for large institutional holders has substantially increased and the time appears to be opportune for recasting the provisions of the Indian Securities Act 1920 so as to provide more satisfactorily for the management of Central public debt

2 Apart from the fact that section 13 of the 1920 Act fails to provide for the summary provisional settlement of disputes regarding Government loans held otherwise than as promissory notes the machinery which it provides is in itself incomplete and there have been numerous cases where on account of a disputant contenting himself with the mere issue of a notice of dispute to the Public Debt Office and abstaining from prosecuting his claim in a court of law or on account of vague top orders emanating from Courts, the periodical payment of interest has been held up for unreasonably long periods much to the annoyance and prejudice of the actual holder. There have also been numerous instances in which where the matter has been taken to Court Government and the Reserve Bank have been made parties to what was essentially a dispute between two private parties in the decision of which Government or the Bank had no interest. It is therefore considered desirable to recast this part of the law so as to provide for a summary adjudication by the Reserve Bank of disputes as to the title to be the holder of a security with a necessary safeguard by way of a guarantee of indemnity to ensure that the interests of the party who may ultimately succeed in establishing in a court of law his right to hold the security are not prejudiced

3 The legislative competence of the Central Legislature extends however only to legislation affecting public debt of the Central Government, while the public debt of a Province is subject to legislation in the Provincial Legislature only. The Act of 1920 which regulates public debt of both kinds is amenable to amendment by the Central Legislature only in so far as it deals with public debt of the Central Government. The present legislation therefore takes the form of a Bill to be enacted as a separate Act applicable only to securities of the Central Government which will reproduce the provisions of the 1920 Act with amendments designed to remedy the defects already referred to and with certain other amendments the necessity or desirability of which is suggested by experience in the administration of the Act during the last two decades. In this reproduction of the provisions of the 1920 Act those provisions have been rearranged so as to group together sections dealing with the incidents common to the different forms in which loans of the Central Government are held and to relegate to separate sections the incidents peculiar to negotiable instruments

The purpose of the Bill is to do away with nomination in local bodies and also to extend the franchise to include all adult persons within the area under the control of a local body

The reasons for such amendment are obvious. One of the purposes of Local Self Government is to associate the people in the administration of their own affairs and thus train them in methods of Government. Nomination cuts across the principle of representation, and the system as it now obtains leads to the anomalous position in which a person in spite of the opposition of the majority of elected members in the local body may be, and often is, elected Chairman of the District Board or President of Union Board, with the help of the nominated members. This encourages ambitious and designing persons to court the favour of local officials in order to secure their position, instead of attempting to win the confidence of their electorate through useful and hard work.

This Bill was originally introduced in 1937 and after being circulated several times was referred to a Select Committee of the Council on 6th March 1942. The Committee concluded its sittings in July 1942 and submitted its final report to the Council but before consideration of the Bill could be taken up the member in charge completed his term of office with the result that former notices of the Bill lapsed. The Bill is therefore being reintroduced but it is identical with the Bill as amended in the Select Committee and incorporates all the drafting changes made by the Legislative Department.

THE HINDU WOMEN'S RIGHTS TO PROPERTY
(EXTENSION TO AGRICULTURAL LAND) BILL, 1943

to give better rights to women to agricultural lands

WHEREAS by Central Act No. XVIII of 1937 as amended by Act XI of 1938 provisions have been made to give better rights to women in respect of property in general

AND

WHEREAS the said Act in its application to Bengal does not extend to agricultural lands

AND

WHEREAS it is expedient to give better rights to women in respect of agricultural lands

It is hereby enacted as follows —

Short title

1 This Act may be called the Hindu Women's Rights to Property (Extension to Agricultural Land) Act 1943

Extent

2 It extends to the whole of Bengal

3 The term property in the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act (Central Act No. XVIII of 1937) as amended by Act XI of 1938 as in force in the province of Bengal shall include and shall be deemed to have always included agricultural lands in Bengal and devolution to agricultural lands on and from 1st day of April 1937 shall be governed and shall always be deemed to have been governed by the provisions of the said Hindu Women's Right to Property Act 1937 as amended by Act XI of 1938

Provided that when any person who but for this Act would have been entitled to agricultural lands has been in possession or has made transfer thereof his possession till the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to be as lawful and the transfer made by him shall be deemed to be as valid and effective as if this Act had not been passed

The Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act 1937 (Central Act No. XVIII of 1937) as amended by Central Act XI of 1938 does not operate to give better rights to women with respect to agricultural lands in Governors Provinces as has been ruled by the Federal Court (vide 45 (WN) page 81 F.R.) while it operates to regulate the devolution of all other properties. According to the laws now in force in Bengal all properties other than agricultural lands devolve upon such women in accordance with the said Hindu Women's Property Act XVIII of 1937. It is not desirable that in cases of such women there should co-exist two different laws of devolution of property according as it is agricultural or non agricultural. There has also been numerous transfers of property on the basis of the right under the said Central Act before the said decision of the Federal Court.

It is with a view to have agricultural lands devolve on the same principle as other properties that this Bill is introduced.

In order to avoid hardship possession up to the date of commencement of this Act of persons who would but for this Act have been entitled to hold such land and transfers already effected are sought to be legalised and validated.

Though there are some provisions and rules for the regulation of the same there is no comprehensive Act to regulate the melas in Bengal. In most of these melas the sanitary and other arrangements are most defective. In the proposed Bill, provisions have been made for sanitary arrangement and construction of stalls and huts, etc. Certain class of melas such as melas to be held under local authority or melas to be held in connection with Muslim shrine or dargha has been excluded from the operation of this Bill. Provisions have been made for formation of Mela Committees formation of Mela fund to be used for the benefit of the melas for licensing of stalls etc. for taking steps to prevent spread and outbreak of fire disease, etc., for supply of drinking water. There is a necessity of such a legislation in Bengal.

Brahmanbaria the 2nd November 1943

The next Primary Final Examination (Chittagong Division for the year 1943) will be held on Wednesday the 1st and Thursday the 2nd December 1943 instead of on the 15th and 16th November 1943, respectively as already published and communicated to all concerned. The rules for the conduct of the examination 1943 already printed and circulated should be read with the amendment noted above relating to the programme for the holding of the examination. The reason for the amendment is the fact that in view of other urgent work calling for prior attention the Government Press cannot expect to despatch the printed descriptive rolls for the conduct of the examination earlier than the 20th November 1943.
